PHYSICAL SECURITY REVIEW

The physical threat to information, personnel, property and tangible assets continues to increase. However, the implementation of expensive technology or manned guarding solutions is often not the answer. Therefore, you may not need the level of security proposed by an installer or service provider.

Advent IM specialises in providing independent, physical security reviews that are based on the actual threat to your organisation and its business requirements and are proven to save you money.

So, whether you have suffered from a spate of break-ins, have a need to hold protectively marked or sensitive information or assets, personal data, need to assess the effectiveness of current control measures or just need want a health check to provide stakeholders with assurances, we can provide unbiased advice with our bespoke physical security review service.

Our reviews are particularly useful if you are new to a role and need a better understanding of current measures, need to determine if planned upgrades/new systems are actually required, have suffered some form of security breach or have simply not had a review for some time.

WHAT'S INVOLVED?

The security review is discreet and tailored to your needs. It is carried out in consultation with crime prevention services and recommendations are based on best practice guidance and standards.
